Leadership Change at SEEC!

Join Us In Congratulating Jessica Neely

CEN Director Leaving SEEC To Pursue Social Justice Degree

Please join us in congratulating Community Employment Network (CEN) Director, Jessica Neely, on her recent acceptance into a Teaching for Social Justice Master of Arts program. Jessica will leave her position at SEEC effective July 26th to pursue her degree in southern Vermont. This move is a return for Jessica to the world of education and allows her to continue her interest in global perspectives and diversity.

"My team is a truly amazing group of talented professionals and I will dearly miss working with them, said Jessica. "I look forward to watching SEEC continue to lead the way in progressive approaches to community inclusion and employment."

Jessica has served as SEEC's Director of CEN since 2015 and has expanded the department's community reach and impact. Her innovative approach to ensuring the people we support receive services smoothly across departments has created a model for other programs and agencies offering disability services.

"Jessica has been instrumental in both development of CEN and development of SEEC's ten year agency-wide strategic plan which will be released this summer," said Executive Director, Karen Lee. "These are hard shoes to fill, but we know CEN has a deep talent pool able to operate seamlessly as we find the right person to lead CEN into the future."
